

GO
AND
TELL

A vertical traffic light with three lenses: red at the top, yellow in the middle, and green at the bottom. The background is a dark blue and green space with glowing light trails and a grid pattern. A semi-transparent dark blue rectangle is overlaid on the right side of the image, containing the text.

After the But,
Then What?

- A vertical traffic light is positioned on the left side of the slide. It has three lenses: the top one is red, the middle one is yellow, and the bottom one is green. The background of the slide is a dark red with a faint grid pattern and some light streaks.
- Jesus left no doubt at all that Christianity was something to be shared, not hoarded.
  - It just means being a bearer of good news.

- And while “but” is a small word, it can turn the entire meaning of a statement or sentence.
  - It would appear that simply calling yourself a Christian doesn’t necessarily make you a Christian.

- It is living out the commands and teachings of Jesus.
- In order for someone to call on the name of the Lord they need someone to tell them about the name of the Lord.

- The book of Romans wasn't written to be read out loud at a pastor's conference, it was a letter written to the church.
  - It was first of all instructions for the local church.

- It is the responsibility of every Follower of Jesus to introduce other people to the Christ they follow.
- And that happens by the way we live and the way we love.

- Paul was casting his vision for the uttermost parts of the world and inviting the church in Rome to share with him.
  - Results are not our responsibility.

- In most cases, it wasn't a something it was a someone.
